ICE & A SLICE...

...and a good tonic. That's all it takes to make one of the most iconic drinks of all time. But if you think there's anything simple about sensational gin, you're very much mistaken. Bursting with botanicals from all over the world, gin takes its name from the most dominant of all, juniper. The real magic comes in how these natural flavourings are combined to create truly unique experiences. Coriander, orange, lemon, cardamom, cinnamon, nutmeg, anise, liquorice, lime and more... straight, with tonic or mixed to perfection... browse our menu and taste to find the gin that's right for you.

Connacullin Irish Gin

Connacullin is the merging of the names of two County Mayo lakes, Lough Conn, and Lough Cullin, which are the source of the water used at our distillery. The lakes, which are connected to each other, are also linked to the Atlantic by the River Moy.

Irish gin, as distinguished from British gin, tends to include more botanicals in addition to gin's classic juniper flavours. Connacullin Irish Gin is big and bold with strong juniper notes and hints of botanicals.

While these are soaking the distillers are busy preparing the vapour infusion, oriental lemons, limes, and fresh grapefruit is added to the infusion basket together with the star of the show gunpowder tea. This is a form of Chinese green tea which is dried and rolled into small shiny pellets which produces a bright, fresh, and slightly spicy flavour.
